- 11 Company X files a patent infringement action against Company Y before the Intellectual Property and Commercial Court of Taiwan.
- In response, Company Y asserts that the asserted patent is invalid and presents prior-art evidence. During the litigation, Company X files a post-grant amendment application with the Taiwan Intellectual Property Office (TIPO), and the amendment proceeding remains pending.
- Under the R.O.C. Intellectual Property Case Adjudication Act, which of the following statements is MOST accurate?
- (A) The court must stay the infringement action until TIPO and all subsequent administrative appeal proceedings regarding the amendment become final.
 - (B) The court may not determine whether the patent has grounds for invalidation because such issues fall exclusively within TIPO's jurisdiction.
 - (C) The court may independently determine whether the patent has grounds for invalidation and may consider the potential effect of the pending amendment without necessarily waiting for TIPO's final decision.
 - (D) The court may determine patent validity, but it is prohibited from considering any amendment that has not yet been approved by TIPO.
- 12 Under the R.O.C. Patent Act, if a patentee wishes to amend the scope of claims after the grant of the patent, which of the following conditions must be satisfied for the amendment to be legally permissible?
- (A) The amendment may broaden the scope of claims as long as it is within one year after grant.
 - (B) The amendment is allowed only if the patentee pays an additional annuity fee within six months of the amendment request.
 - (C) The amendment must not substantially enlarge or alter the scope of the claims, and must comply with the requirements of clarity and support by the specification.
 - (D) The amendment can freely introduce new technical features not disclosed in the original specification, provided they improve industrial applicability.
- 13 A patentee holds a valid patent for a chemical formulation requiring the use of "alkaline earth metal" as a core stabilizing element. A competitor later manufactures a competing product substituting the "alkaline earth metal" with a specific silicate compound. Compared with the patent concerned, while the product does not fall within the literal scope, it functions substantively the same, known to a skilled person at the time of infringement. Under Taiwan's patent infringement assessment guidelines, which legal framework should the court invoke to determine whether infringement is established?
- (A) The Prosecution History Estoppel
 - (B) The Compulsory Licensing Provisions to permit third-party usage based on public interest.
 - (C) The Literal Infringement Test to confirm absolute textual identity between the claim and the accused product.
 - (D) The Doctrine of Equivalents to prevent the competitor from avoiding liability through insubstantial variations.
- 14 Which of the following is NOT a characteristic of patent rights?
- (A) Territoriality
 - (B) Exclusivity
 - (C) Perpetuity
 - (D) Transferability

- 15 Which of the following best describes the purpose of the Bolar Exception in patent law?
 - (A) To allow competitors to manufacture and commercially sell patented products before the patent expires.
 - (B) To permit activities necessary for obtaining regulatory approval of a product before patent expiration.
 - (C) To grant an automatic extension of the patent term for pharmaceutical inventions.
 - (D) To exempt universities from liability for all forms of patent infringement.
- 16 Under Taiwan patent practice, a divisional application is generally permissible only when:
 - (A) The parent application has already matured into a patent right.
 - (B) The parent application remains procedurally pending and the statutory requirements for division are satisfied.
 - (C) The applicant intends to extend the patent term of the parent application.
 - (D) The parent application has been finally rejected and all remedies have been exhausted.
- 17 In a patent infringement action before the Intellectual Property and Commercial Court, a Technical Examination Officer (TEO) prepares a technical report to assist the court in understanding the technology at issue. Which of the following statements is most accurate under R.O.C.'s Intellectual Property Case Adjudication Act?
 - (A) The court may rely on the TEO's report as binding expert evidence without disclosing it to the parties.
 - (B) The TEO may independently determine whether the patent is valid and issue a decision binding on the court.
 - (C) The parties must be given an opportunity to review and respond to the TEO's opinions before the court relies upon them.
 - (D) The TEO serves as a court-appointed expert witness and may be cross-examined in the same manner as a witness.
- 18 The extension of Taiwan's design patent term from 12 years to 15 years was primarily intended to:
 - (A) Provide design patents with protection equivalent to copyright protection.
 - (B) Align Taiwan's system with international trends and enhance protection for design-intensive industries.
 - (C) Eliminate the need for substantive examination of design patents.
 - (D) Permit perpetual protection for industrial designs.
- 19 One of the fundamental policy objectives of the patent system under the R.O.C. Patent Act is to balance private incentives and public interest. This objective is primarily achieved by:
 - (A) Granting exclusive rights for a limited period in exchange for public disclosure of the invention.
 - (B) Allowing patent owners to maintain technical information as trade secrets indefinitely.
 - (C) Eliminating disclosure requirements once a patent is granted.
 - (D) Extending patent protection whenever commercial success is demonstrated.
- 20 Under the R.O.C. Patent Act, the protection of design patents was expanded to cover certain digital image designs. Which of the following statements is most accurate?
 - (A) Design patents protect only designs embodied in physical articles.
 - (B) Digital image designs cannot be enforced against online infringement.
 - (C) Design patents may protect qualifying digital image designs even when not permanently embodied in a physical product.
 - (D) Digital image designs are subject to a shorter patent term than other design patents.

- 21 Under the R.O.C. Patent Act, which of the following subject matters would generally be eligible for an invention patent but not for a utility model patent?
- (A) A reinforced structure of a folding ladder.
 - (B) A manufacturing process for producing semiconductor wafers.
 - (C) A new configuration of components in a mechanical hand tool.
 - (D) An improved shock-absorbing structure for a bicycle saddle.
- 22 Which of the following statements best distinguishes the functions of the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) and the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT)?
- (A) The TRIPS Agreement establishes minimum standards for intellectual property protection, while the PCT provides a unified filing procedure for seeking patent protection in multiple jurisdictions.
 - (B) The TRIPS Agreement allows applicants to obtain a worldwide patent, while the PCT establishes minimum patentability standards for member states.
 - (C) Both the TRIPS Agreement and the PCT automatically grant patent rights in all contracting states.
 - (D) Both the TRIPS Agreement and the PCT primarily govern patent infringement litigation and remedies.
- 23 Under the doctrine of patent exhaustion as recognized in Taiwan, which of the following statements is most accurate regarding parallel importation of patented products?
- (A) Parallel importation always constitutes patent infringement because the products were imported without the patentee's consent in Taiwan.
 - (B) Parallel importation is prohibited unless the importer obtains a compulsory license.
 - (C) Parallel importation is permitted only after the patent has expired.
 - (D) Parallel importation is generally permitted when the patented products were lawfully placed on the market by the patentee or with the patentee's authorization.
- 24 In a patent infringement lawsuit governed by the R.O.C. Intellectual Property Case Adjudication Act, the plaintiff (patentee) requests the court to discover evidence hidden within the defendant's premises. The court decides to appoint an independent expert to conduct an on-site investigation. Which of the following terms correctly identifies this specialized role?
- (A) Technical Examination Officer
 - (B) Verifier
 - (C) Patent Examiner
 - (D) Expert Witness
- 25 Under the R.O.C. Intellectual Property Case Adjudication Act, a party files a patent infringement action before the Intellectual Property and Commercial Court without appointing an attorney in a proceeding subject to compulsory legal representation. What is the most appropriate procedural consequence?
- (A) The court must immediately dismiss the action with prejudice.
 - (B) The court must proceed with the case because patent litigation is exempt from compulsory representation requirements.
 - (C) The court may order the party to appoint qualified legal counsel within a specified period, and procedural defects may result if the order is not complied with.
 - (D) The opposing party automatically loses the right to challenge representation defects.
