Some squatters are genuinely homeless; others appear to be anti-government or just anti-having-to-pay-rent. In March, a group called Topple the Tyrants occupied a $17 million North London house belonging to Seif al-Islam el-Qaddafi, a son of the deposed Libyan leader. And in February, a central London house owned by the director Guy Ritchie was seized by people who said they planned to set up a free school with classes in tarot, house occupation and using public transport for free.
